

Criminal Accountability and Systemic Abuse Report

1. Legal Context:

- Debts after death are paid from the estate, not inherited by family members.
- RICO Act allows federal prosecution for corrupt networks and seizure of illegally obtained assets.
- RICO does not forgive city or municipal debt.

2. Law Enforcement & Government Accountability:

- City officials and police officers can be prosecuted for harboring fugitives, falsifying reports, and conspiracy.
- Such cases should be reported to the District Attorney's office and may also involve the City Attorney or Internal Affairs.
- Crimes involving systemic abuse, child endangerment, or misconduct by peace officers may escalate to state or federal review.

3. Specific Allegations and Incidents:

- Allegations include SSFPD officers referring to an individual as "our convict", failing to report or act on violent and sexual crimes.
- Claims of a fugitive being harbored and employed by city officials, child abuse ignored or covered up by law enforcement.
- Uninvestigated incidents reportedly witnessed by officers with no resulting action.
- Allegations of money stolen ($300,000), trafficking, and attempts at emancipation ignored.
- The child in question is stated to be a foreign national, invoking higher scrutiny under federal and international child protection laws.

4. Legal and Civil Recourse:

- AB 218 extends the statute of limitations for civil suits in childhood sexual abuse cases.
- PC §135 and PC §132 relate to obstruction of justice through withholding or altering evidence.
- Failure to report suspected child abuse is a violation of mandatory reporting laws.

5. Institutional Oversight:

- Internal Affairs can investigate individual officers.
- District Attorney and Governor's Office may review systemic failures.
- Affected individuals may pursue civil litigation through the City Attorney's office if criminal channels fail.

6. Public Policy Implications:

- Failing to investigate can be considered willful recklessness or criminal negligence.
- Systemic corruption and abuse undermine trust and can result in municipal bankruptcy or federal intervention.